UK Outlook for Friday 19 Nov 2021 to Sunday 28 Nov 2021:
Cloudy for most, with patchy, mainly light rain across the far north. Throughout this period, winds will often be blowing from the west or northwest, with some incursions of northerly winds possible. High pressure will often be close by to the south and southwest of the UK, bringing largely settled and dry conditions here, this possibly extending to all areas of the country at times. However, some spells of rain are likely to affect northern areas, accompanied by brisk winds. There is a possibility of a trend towards colder conditions later, with a low risk of wintry showers in the north. Otherwise, temperatures are likely to be close to or just below average. Under high pressure, frost and fog is likely overnight, this fog slow to clear during the morning.
